

Sycamore Creek Interpretive Center

Come Discover the Natural History and Ecology of Temescal Valley

The mission of the Sycamore Creek Interpretive Center is to cultivate environmental understanding and stewardship through engaging educational experiences, that empower all of us to live more sustainably.

Our center sits on Sycamore Creek Preserve. The preserve serves as an important wildlife corridor, that protects the diversity and function of the biologically rich ecosystem. The preserve supports several important habitats and species, such as the federally endangered Munz's onion.

Munz's Onion, Allium munzii
Photo: Pacific Southwest Region U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service

Admission is FREE. Come experience our indoor exhibits, displays and activities; designed to inspire curiosity, scientific thought and natural resource stewardship.

Sycamore Creek Interpretive Center (SCIC) is a project of

Riverside-Corona Resource Conservation District

The center features a small footpath that circles the building. The path offers several interpretive signs, native plants and lovely views of the preserve. Additional educational signs, a wildlife viewing area and an outdoor classroom, are planned for the future.

The center offers a variety of educational programs. Follow us on Facebook or sign-up for our email list; to discover current programs and workshops. Additionally, custom programming is available for homeschool groups, scouts and school field trips.

"I have to be a scientist to do science"; not at Sycamore Creek Interpretive Center! Everyone can be a scientist with citizen science. SCIC serves as a citizen science outpost in the Santa Ana Watershed Citizen Science Network. Help collect data and contribute to real research projects in the watershed and even around the world.

Open select Fridays & Saturdays

See website & social media for monthly calendar

9 am to 3 pm • Closed holidays

email scic@rccd.org

website www.rccd.org

11875 Indian Truck Trail
Temescal Valley, CA 92883

